HINTS COUNTER-BLOW AT JAPS

CHURCHILL TO SEAL PACT BY TALK TODAY

Speaks Before Joint Session of U. S. Congress During Washington Stay.

STAFF TALKS CONTINUE

Capital Convinced War Will Be Long and Difficult; Battle Picture Mixed.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Winston Churchill, British son of an American mother, addresses a point session of congress today to seal the Anglo-American pact against the Axis.

Good news comes with the bad as Mr. Churchill prepares for a notable moment in his own life and in the story of the two nation's relations.

Manila, the capital of the Philippines, has been declared an open city and President Manuel Quezon's government is leaving. But American forces on the Islands are standing off encircling attack in great force.

Hongkong has fallen. Singapore is hard pressed.

But the British in North Africa steadily are pushing the Axis westward and Russia's army still moves in the right direction.

While Mr. Churchill speaks today the staff conferences accompanying Anglo-American war council discussions continue and the grim conviction settles upon this capital that it will be a long war and a hard one.

The nation's Christmas guest was to speak at 12:30 p. m. EST., to members and distinguished guests in the small senate chamber. His address will be broadcast throughout the world.

Mr. Roosevelt will not accompany the Prime Minister to congress.

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill yesterday carried their great responsibilities to the altar of God where they prayed for strength in the arduous days ahead. Accompanied by their military and naval leaders, they attended interdenominational services at the 126-year-old Foundry Methodist church. They prayed for "the triumph of good will among men" and heard appeals for divine aid in the battle "for a genuine new order worthy of human civilization."

Later the president and the Prime Minister had Christmas dinner at the White House and prepared for many more conferences to begin today. The Canadian Prime Minister, W. L. MacKenzie King, accompanied by high Canadian officials, arrives this afternoon to enter the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences.

'Lost' Gunners Lose Clothes But Keep Their Lives

WITH U. S. ARMY IN NORTH LUZON—(U.P.)—Four "lost" machine gunners of a cavalry unit returned to their base today without any regular clothes but with a fine contempt for Japanese "marksmanship."

The four, who were practically naked, said they had been captured by the enemy and their uniforms and guns were taken from them.

to run and started shooting at them. They dropped to their knees and crawled through shrubbery until they escaped.

They were in the Binalonan sector of Pangasinan province and had to walk through the country for two days after they found shawls and other garments to wear. Six other men who had been separated from the regiment joined them and all 10 were welcomed at their base, where their comrades served a meal of chicken rice and corned beef in celebration.

Wounded Victims of Jap Bombing Raid on Honolulu Reach San Francisco With Tales of Courage, Horror

(By International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO — Maimed, wounded and sightless victims of Japan's treacherous bombing of Honolulu lay in San Francisco hospitals today.

They were the first war casualties evacuated from Hawaii.

A stream of ambulances and army trucks with stretcher bearers removed the victims from the convoyed ships which brought them to the mainland.

With stunning impact the full realization of the horror of Japan's ruthless bombing of Pearl Harbor hit those who saw the sorrowful sight.

There were men hideously burned by explosions. There were sightless men. There were others with broken bodies.

It was a sight made all the more poignant because they arrived on Christmas day—a Christmas void of any happiness for the suffering victims.

A veteran San Francisco police inspector, toughened by years of grim duties, was one of those permitted aboard the ship.

"I saw them," he said. "I saw what bomb blasts did. I saw what shrapnel did. I saw what were once fine, husky lads. I saw their bandages."

Then he stopped for a moment, before adding:

"I feel sick—I feel like somebody hit me in the pit of the stomach."

Then he walked away.

GIRL, 9, KILLED, 13 INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES

Akron Youngster Dies When Car Upsets; Holiday Toll For Ohio Hits 36.

A nine-year-old Akron girl was killed and 13 persons were injured in the Mansfield area over Christmas as holiday tragedies claimed 36 lives in Ohio and 431 in the nation.

Seven of the 13 injured in this section were involved in the same accident Wednesday afternoon. Only two of the 13 were Richland county residents. Two other Mansfielders, however, suffered injuries yesterday in a mishap near Massillon in which two Barberton women were killed.

Loleta Elizabeth Mackey of Akron was killed and her mother and brother were injured at 7:30 p. m. Christmas eve when a car in which they were riidng collided with a truck that had stopped at the scene of another accident on U. S. Route 42 about three miles south of Mansfield. The car overturned once in the highway and landed on its wheels again.

The little girl's death was the 31st of the year in Richland county traffic, heaviest toll on record in the county. At the same time last year the toll stood at 18.

The child suffered a fractured skull and multiple cuts when the right side of the Mackey car was nearly shared off as it struck the truck. She was riding on the right side of the rear seat. Also injured in the accident was Mrs. Orpha E. Mackey, 48, the girl's mother; James, 13, her brother, and Mrs. Blanche Ingram, 45, riding with them. The child's father, Roy D. Mackey, who was driving, escaped injury. The two women and the boy received head and face lacerations and were taken to General hospital. The truck driver was not identified.

Seven out-of-state residents, three of them Iowa youths en route home for Christmas, were injured in a two-car crash Wednesday aft-

TANK BLAMED

Exposed Fuel Cited After 10 Die In Bus Crash Fire.

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—An exposed fuel tank was blamed today for the nation's worst Christmas day tragedy in which 10 persons lost their lives when a Public Service company bus crashed into a house and burst into flames.

Twenty-one of the bus' passengers were injured, most of them suffering burns. The bus, filled with a holiday crowd—many of whom were returning from midnight mass—went out of control after colliding with an automobile, smashed into the oil tank and was enveloped in flames after crashing into the wall of the house.

Director of Public Safety Harry D. McBride said the oil tank was improperly placed and an investigation would follow. An inquest will be held Saturday.

Tire Rationing Program to Be Set Up for City Tomorrow

Mansfield became more conscious of the war emergency today with the announcement that a meeting to set up a tire rationing program would be held tomorrow and that city council would meet Monday night to appropriate funds for safeguarding the city's vital facilities.

All Mansfield tire dealers have been requested to attend a meeting tomorrow at 10 a. m., in the Chamber of Commerce rooms where federal orders on the rationing of tires and other rubber products will be explained.

Councilman Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee, announced that city council would be asked to appropriate $6,000 at its Monday night meeting to enable the city to swing into the initial step in a plan to safeguard its water supply and other defense facilities.

Courtney Burton, state director of civilian defense, asked all Ohio mayors to call similar meetings and forwarded to them federal information to be given out at the tire meetings. Mayor W. J. Locke is expected to direct the Mansfield meeting.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of the Mansfield civilian defense committee said that a tire rationing committee would be appointed by the civilian defense council and the mayor. Tire rationing is scheduled to go into effect Jan. 4.

Council will meet at 8 p. m., in the municipal building to provide funds to carry out a defense pro-

BAG 17 PLANES

U. S., British Airmen Destroy Japanese Aircraft.

CHUNGKING — (INS) — A combined force of British and American fighter pilots destroyed 17 enemy planes in combatting yesterday's Japanese aerial attack on Rangoon, Burma, the commander of American volunteer pilots based in China reported today in a telegram to Chungking.

Thirteen of the Japanese planes destroyed were fighter craft and four were bombers. The British and Americans lost three planes, it was said.

PATROL HALTS JAP SUB RAIDS

Sinking of Enemy Undersea Craft Last Reported Action Off California.

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO — United States patrol bombers and warships sweeping the Pacific in search of enemy submarine today appeared to have halted, at least temporarily, raids on American coastwise shipping.

There had been no reported attacks on American shps since Wednesday. Nine ships had been attacked along the coast between Dec. 18 and Dec. 24, of which one was sunk and two damaged. Six seamen have been killed and five injured.

The last definite news of Pacific coast submarine warfare was the war department's Christmas communique announcing that a U. S. army bomber had smashed one Japanese submarine off the California coast. It was known that U. S. planes were in action against the submarines in at least three of the attacks.

The communique said that a bomber of Lieut Gen. John L. DeWitt's western defense command "successfully attacked an enemy submarine off the California coast."

"Soon after the submarine was sighted it made an emer-

City Gets Back to Normal After Holiday Observance

Satisfied that this Christmas was one of the best despite the war and its threat of greater hardships next year, Mansfielders went back to work today to look forward to the New Year holiday next Thursday.

Although the snow was missing and the temperature was well above freezing throughout the day, Mansfield observed Christmas in its usual way. The needy were remembered, thousands gathered at homes for their annual holiday dinner and gift exchanges, and other thousands went out of the city to be with their families elsewhere.

The downtown section was comparatively deserted as stores and even filling stations closed to give employes a holiday. Scores of families entertained their sons and brothers who were home from army camps over the holiday. Other youths, less fortunate, spent Christmas in camp.

Many persons wanted to make the observance a good one this year for they felt that war will be nearer home by next Christmas and the holiday may not be as cheerful.

Christmas baskets, the gift of a public that remembers the less fortunate at holiday time, made the day better for more than 600 families in the city. The baskets were provided by the Give-a-Christmas program sponsored by The News-Journal, Junior Association of Commerce, and the Community Fund; the Salvation Army, Volunteers of America, American Legion, Mansfield Senior high school, Bowman school, and other organizations.

Annual Cleveland Payrolls Reach $338,000,000.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Industrial payrolls in the Cleveland district today stood at an all-time high of $338,000,000 annually, according to an industrial survey by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce in a yearly report.

Approximately a billion dollars worth of war orders in direct government contracts or sub-contracts have been placed with Cleveland manufacturers since the start of the defense program in June, 1940, the survey disclosed.

French, One-Time Promoter, Back In City Just 'to Visit'

Charles French, promoter of fabulous schemes and former resident of Mansfield, is back for a visit after an absence of many years but he says his visit is "purely social," and that he's through promoting.

French, who is now 80, was one of the city's more colorful residents during the 1830's when he was attempting to build a "Chicago Short Line railroad" through Mansfield.

When French left here in 1901, many residents breathed a sigh of relief for he was credited with persuasive power which separated several of them from their savings in schemes to "get rich quick."

After he left, his travels through the country were marked by numerous law suits and threatened prosecutions for his connection with new financial promotions. French because of his unusual

2 INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK NEAR SHELBY

Others Escape By Leaping From Locomotive; Five Cars Derailed.

Two trainmen were injured and three others escaped by leaping from the locomotives of a double header freight train which crashed into the rear of another train at 9:40 a. m. yesterday on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad one mile south of Shelby.

The crash derailed five freight cars and a caboose, tore up nearly 100 feet of track, scattered a cargo of bedding materials over the right-of-way, and caused damage estimated by railroad officials at $15,000.

The injured were Vernon Armentrout, 23, a brakeman, and Ralph H. Fairall, 27, a fireman, both of Newark. They were cut and bruised when they leaped from cabs of the two locomotives along with other members of the crew just before the crash. Both were treated at Shelby hospital.

The locomotives of the 60-car freight train smashed into the rear of another freight train which had stopped while cars of a third train were being switched in the railroad yards at Shelby.

The locomotive crashed into the caboose mashing it against a coal car. No trainmen were in the caboose at the time.

H. H. Harsh, division superintendent, said an investigation is being made to determine cause of the wreck. He said signals had been posted by the crew of the train which has halted.

Only the caboose and a coal car were damaged on the one train but the crash derailed five freight cars and smashed others on the train which struck it.

Roads in the vicinity of the accident were jammed with cars for hours afterward as hundreds of spectators gathered at the crash scene.

Wrecking crews from Willard and Newark had cleared the track to permit resumption of traffic at 5 p. m. yesterday.

YOUTHS HELD

Two Charged With Violating Selective Service Act.

Two Mansfield area youths faced charges today of violating the selective service act by refusing to report for assignment to service.

Mansfield police took into custody Henry Clay Parman, 24, of 370 Newman street upon request from the U. S. marshal in Cleveland while Holmes county Sheriff H. R. Weiss arrested Raymond K. Cullen, 23, of Millersburg. Warrants for both youths were issued in Cleveland earlier this week.

Parman, who is in city jail awaiting the arrival of deputy marshals from Cleveland, objects to military service on the grounds that he is an "ordained minister" for the order of Jehovah's Witnesses. Cullen declared he was a conscientious objector and refused to report to the board for assignment for non-military work, officers said.

Prime Minister Of Australia Tips New Move

U. S. Army Reports Campaign Going Well In Philippine Battle; Dutch Bag Two Enemy Transports and Destroyer; Manila Open City.

BULLETIN

MANILA—(AP)—A two-way Japanese assault on Manila has intensified, with an artillery fight northwest of the capital and a tank battle to the southeast where Japanese pressure was increased and casualties were heavy, an army communique declared late today.

(By Associated Press)

A hint of momentous counter-measures by Britain, the United States and Australia to combat Japan's offensive advantage was dropped today by Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia, and more cheerful news on the 20-day-old battle of the Philippines came in a U. S. army report that the campaign was "going well" on all fronts.

Curtin said he could not disclose the precise form of the new Allied movement, already launched, but declared he was greatly encouraged by growing reinforcements.

Simultaneously, dispatches from Batavia said Dutch warplanes slashing at sea-borne Japanese invasion forces had sunk two Japanese transports and a destroyer.

The destroyer and one transport were sunk off Kuching, the capital of tiny Sarawak, north Borneo, where the Japanese have landed in force and apparently captured Kuching, only 475 miles across the south China sea from Singapore.

The other transport was sunk by a plane on a reconnaissance flight, a Dutch communique said.

In the Philippine conflict, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander in chief of U. S. Far East forces, formally proclaimed Manila an open, undefended city to save it from the ravages of air and ground assaults by Japanese invasion hordes.

High-flying Japanese planes droned over Manila within an hour after Gen. MacArthur's proclamation, stirring a series of alarms, but the raiders avoided attacking the city proper and dropped their bombs in the direction of Nichols airport on the capital's outskirts.

Other planes flew on to the west, apparently to attack Corregidor island fortress at the entrance to Manila bay.

An army spokesman emphasized that the action of proclaiming Manila an open city would not affect the course of the war "which will continue . . . . more vigorously than at present," and U. S. High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre declared:

"We will fight to the last man."

Civil officials at the mountaintop summer capital of Baguio, 140 miles north of Manila, were likewise empowered to designate their city undefended.

There was some doubt, however, whether Baguio had not

DISARMED: 6,000 Hongkong Troops Told to Stack Arms

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO—The remnants of the British imperial garrison at Hongkong, estimated at 6,000 men, was reported to have been ordered to stack arms by noon today in conformity with yesterday's surrender to Japanese siege assault.

The disarming got swiftly under way at various points of the now occupied British crown colony following the British command's formal acceptance early this morning of demands presented by representatives of the Japanese army and navy.

The Japanese demands provided:

1. Stationing of a "certain number" of Japanese troops for maintenance of order.

2. British assumption of full responsibility for cessation of hostilities and prevention of "untoward incidents."

3. That decisions on further details of the British surrender should be made later.

Meanwhile Seki Yano, Japanese consul general at Hongkong, together with 22 other Japanese nationals, including members of the consular staff, who had been interned by British authorities since the start of the Japanese-British conflict, have been freed.

Escorted by a British official, Japanese army and navy representatives found part of the consular staff at the consulate general and other Japanese, including Yano, living in a tent camp on Stanley peninsula—all unharmed.

It was learned, meanwhile, that the final Japanese military action against Hongkong was at 5:50 p. m. (3:50 a. m. EST) on Thurs-

SLAIN: 20,000 Nazis Killed In Battle Near Sevastopol

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's Crimean armies were reported today to have lost 20,000 killed in a six-day battle at the approaches of Sevastopol, long-besieged Russian naval base, and Soviet dispatches listed an additional 13,900 Germans slain on other battlefields during the Christmas holidays.

With the steam-roller Red army counter-offensive sweeping on unchecked, advices reaching London said the Russians had recaptured the stragetic Oka river city of Kaluga, 110 miles southwest of Moscow. Kaluga is 65 miles northeast of Tula, where the Germans for weeks attempted to break through to Moscow.

In the north, on the Leningrad front, Soviet troops were credited with recapturing Oskyue after a 62-mile drive from Tikhvin, 110 miles southeast of Leningrad, and it was apparent that this thrust, if continued, would soon threaten the right flank of the German siege forces before Leningrad itself.

Aside from the bloody slaughter at Sevastopol, where the situation was still obscure, the Russians said 10,200 German officers and men had been killed in fighting on the Moscow front from Dec. 21 to 25, another 3,000 slain in an undisclosed sector, and 700 killed on the southern (Ukraine) front.

Dispatches to the Soviet newspaper Izvestia reported that Red army troops had succeeded in smashing into a "large populated place on the western bank of the Oka river" which Hitler had personally ordered to be held.

"The Germans had strongly fortified this place and exerted every effort to stop our defenses," Izvestia said, adding that Russian soldiers captured the town after two days of fierce street-fighting.

COUNTER-BLOW AT JAPANESE HINTED IN TALK

Australian Prime Minister Says Action Started; Manila Open City.

already fallen to the Japanese, who were reported driving swiftly against it from two directions. Many Americans, including women and children, were feared trapped in the city.

A U. S. army bulletin issued at noon, Manila time, acknowledged that Japanese pressure was increasing on the southeastern front from Atimonan, 75 miles below Manila, to Mauban, on Lamon bay 20 miles north of Atimonan.

On the northern front, other Japanese columns driving from the Aparri beach-head, 250 miles north of Manila, were reported to have reached Teguegarao, 50 miles inland.

"Our line is still holding on both the north and south fronts, although Japanese pressure is continuing," an army spokesman said. "No additional landings have been reported."

Dispatches from Manila said that the invaders were advancing by sheer weight of numbers and that some of the Japanese were boys 15 to 18 years old, equipped with light .25 caliber rifles or submachine guns. An American officer said the .25 caliber bullet would not kill a man unless it struck in a vital spot.

In Washington the senate was called to hear Prime Minister Churchill speak and the senate department wrestled with the complications of a Free French seizure of the island of St. Pierre and Miquelon off the Newfoundland coast.

Despite the islands bloodless capture by four small warships and an almost unanimous vote of the cod-fishing populace to be in the anti-Axis line-up, the step held grave possibilities. The U. S. state department denounced the action and indicated that it imperilled an agreement neutralizing all west Atlantic French possessions, the purpose of which was to keep Vichy from joining up with Hitler.

A Berlin report said French Admiral Jean Darlan had gone to the big French naval base at Toulon, a trip which might mean the islands' seizure had decided Vichy in Germany's favor.

Canadian officials, vitally concerned, said they were taken by surprise by the seizure, but Prime Minister MacKenzie King said as he left for Washington on a prearranged visit that neither did Canada have any knowledge of the agreement Washington declared endangered.

Admiral Reports 2 Jap Ships Sunk

MANILA — (INS) — Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, announced today that U. S. submarines had delivered a "Christmas present" in the form of two Japanese ships certainly sunk and two more probably sunk.

In a press conference, he said: "I haven't hadd too complete reports from my subs since I last talked to you about them. I don't hear too often.

"But I do hear when they hit, and I have had reports of one large Japanese transport being sunk and one minesweeper. I also have reports of two that are probably sunk.

"One is a large seaplane tender. I believe this tender was a man of war. The other propably is another transport."

Japs Say American Sea Units Destroyed

LONDON — (AP) — The German radio broadcast today an assertion attributed to Japanese Imperial headquarters that all American naval units in Philippine waters had been destroyed.

The statement said that Japanese naval and air forces had wiped out all vessels sent to the Philippines from the mainland (Continental United States) as well as those stationed in the Islands originally.

There was no information available to support such Japanese claims and the Berlin rendition of Tokyo's statement offered no immediate details. This is a familiar Axis propaganda technique.

Form Allied War Council in China

CHUNGKING, China — (U.P.) — British and Chinese military delegates have formed an allied war council for the Far East to function at Chungking as the result of a three-day secret meeting, it was announced today.

Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, British commander in chief in India, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, the Chinese leader, were the principals.

No word was permitted to leak out until the military leaders had concluded their council "on problems connected with joint war action by the democratic countries."

Japs Wage Desperate Malayan Battle

SINGAPORE — (U.P.) — Japanese shock troops were reported suffering suicidal losses today in a desperate battle on the Perak river 300 miles north of Singapore. On the east coast the Japanese were approaching the Kemaman area only 225 miles from Singapore.

A Malaya command communique reported empire lines holding firm with the situation unchanged. It noted engagements between patrols in the Sungei Siput and Perak areas on the west side of the peninsula and north of Kemaman in Trengganu province on the east coast.

The positions cited indicated that the empire forces were holding still their new east-west line across the peninsula, and that on the east side a real test of strength was imminent.

It was admitted that there had been no further news from Kuching, capital of Sarawak in Borneo, where communication had been cut off since late Wednesday when it was indicated that the Japanese were landing troops in the area.

Islanders Vote to Join Free French

ST. PIERRE — (U.P.) — The residents of this tiny French island off the Newfoundland coast desire to be affiliated with the Free French forces of Gen. Charles DeGaulle by an overwhelming majority, the Free French who seized the island Wednesday, announced today.

They took a plebiscite among the males of St. Pierre, and the neighboring island, Miquelon, on Christmas day. The question was whether they wished to remain under Vichy France and collaborate with the Axis or give allegiance to the Free French. Of those voting on St. Pierre, 98 per cent, or 650 were for the Free French and 10 were for Vichy.

The results of the plebiscite in the Miquelon islands and the tiny dots comprising the St. Pierre group, were not completely tabulated but Free French officials said they were approximately the same.

The Free French landed on St. Pierre Wednesday from two tiny corvettes and within half an hour were in control. No shots were fired, no blood was shed and the population gave every indication of welcoming them whole-heartedly.

Claim 40 British Planes Shot Down

TOKYO — (By Official Japanese Radio) — (INS) — Japanese Imperial headquarters announced today that Nipponese bombers yesterday raided Rangoon, Burma, and claimed 40 British planes were shot down in air battles.

Eight other British aircraft were set on fire on the ground, the communique said. It also claimed the Rangoon power station was "completely demolished" and that heavy damage was inflicted on British air facilities.

Eight Jap planes were lost and another made a forced landing in Thai territory, the announcement conceded.

Meanwhile the 78th ordinary session of the Diet opened formally in the House of Peers with a message delivered by the Emperor.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Police today held a 46-year-old chef who, they said, shot an innocent couple when he found them sitting in a restaurant with a woman who had failed to keep a "date" with him.

The wounded pair are Andrew Toth, 38, and Miss Peggy Miller, 33, a sister of Miss Stella Feist, 41, who was to have kept a date with Peter Halves, the chef.

was carried out quickly and efficiently.

After the procession of stretchers came the children evacuees—sons and daughters of service men. Some of the children bore the scars of the air raids.

Lastly came a group of diplomats from foreign posts for America's allies, a number of young Chinese and evacuees from the Far East, including some Manila business men who left the Philippines before the American-Japanese war started.

Morale was kept high during the perilous voyage. There was dancing every other night, with movies on the alternate nights.

A few gifts were distributed on Christmas eve and carols were sung. One sailor who had lost his right foot lent a touch of grim humor to the celebration. He saw a companion whose left foot had been amputated. He scribbled a note to the friend:

"How about a dance?"

Mrs. Leslie Levesque, 49, whose husband died in Hawaii before the battle of Pearl Harbor, said there had been a Christmas party for the 47 children on her ship.

"But it was pretty sad," she said. "There were a number of widows and orphans aboard."

One wounded sailor was full of praise for his commanding officer in the battle of Honolulu.

"Our skipper was a little fellow," he said. "You could look right over his head. But he certainly was full of fight. We only had a three inch gun where we were, but he wouldn't let anybody else fire it. He peppered away at the Japs until a bomb hit nearby and blew him into the water. Our executive gave the order to abandon ship.

"Our skipper bobbed up out of the water just as we were going down the gangplank.

"Hey, where you fellows going," he yelled. "We told him we were abandoning ship.

"'The hell you are!' he shouted. 'Get back to your stations!'

"So we went back and he climbed aboard and went back to his gun. When he spotted some men idling he ordered a messenger to get a sack of potatoes.

"When the messenger hesitated, the skipper velled at him:

"'Yes, I mean potatoes. I got to keep the men occupied at a time like this. Let them throw potatoes at the Japs'."

day when Japanese bombers dumped their last load of bombs on the besieged British troops—Canadians, Britons and Indians.

The British surrender came at 5:50 p. m.

(DNB, German official news agency, reported in a dispatch from Tokyo that the full British strength at Hongkong had been 24,000 troops—13,000 regular army forces, "mostly Indians," 2,000 well equipped Canadians who arrived as reinforcements, 4,000 armed police, and 5,000 volunteers.)

Proudly, Britons Mourn Hongkong

LONDON — (U.P.) — Britons mourned the loss of Hongkong today but took pride in its gallant defense by British, Canadian and Indian troops, and promised that it would be restored to British sovereignty.

Military authorities here knew nothing of the fate of the men who were now prisoners of the Japanese, and had only Japanese reports of the surrender on Christmas day after a stand against odds which, it was known from the first, were hopeless.

"We have nothing to add to the Hongkong government's message," a commentator said. "Nothing is known of the final stages of the fighting and it is questionable what we will ever get on it. I do know that one of the great difficulties at the end was water supplies."

Sir Mark Young, governor, had advised the colonial office that military and naval commanders had told him that no further effective defense could be made.

400 Americans In Japanese Hands

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Nearly 400 American nationals today fell into the hands of the Japanese with the surrender of Hongkong.

Approximately this number are believed by the state department to be in Hongkong at the present time. Most of the Americans are businessmen and missionaries who, with their families, sought refuge in Hongkong when the Japanese made it unpleasant for them in the occupied areas of southern China.

Only one American citizen is known to have been killed during the siege of Hongkong. Miss Florence Webb, whose family is from Orange, N. J., was killed by shell splinters on Dec. 14. Several Americans have been slightly wounded.

SHELBY — Wood county authorities have returned Alvin Guthrie, 27, escaped convict who was captured here Wednesday by Patrolman Walter Benedict, to Bowling Green where he will face a charge of grand larceny for auto theft.

Guthrie, of near Shiloh, was caught here by Patrolman Benedict, Guthrie escaped several months ago from the Ohio State reformatory at Mansfield.

He had been sentenced to the reformatory when found guilty of grand larceny.

gram discussed at informal meetings during the past two weeks.

Last week, council decided to erect fences around the city's important water supply wells, the Maxwell Springs pumping station and the Woodland reservoir.

It also agreed that the police radio transmitter should be moved from its present location on the ground floor of the municipal building to a safer point on the third floor, that a new antenna which would be more easily keep free from the attacks of saboteurs be installed and that an emergency power supply for the police and fire signals be purchased.

In addition to these precautions, screen grills are to be placed over the windows and doors of the police station.

Miller said that the matter of appointing five new patrolmen for special defense guard duty and two more for traffic work would not be discussed at the meeting. Mayor Locke has requested the addition of five new men to the police department to patrol the city's water supply system.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1941.

Reminder: The 1942, which seemed so far off a little while ago, is almost here.

Now is a good time to check up on some of the geography that you thought uninteresting when you were in school.

Hitler may not know that "Britain always wins the last battle"—but the news will probably leak through to him eventually.

Singapore Next Big Objective

SURRENDER of Hongkong, after its defenders had battled valiantly against vastly greater numbers of Japanese air, sea and land forces, gives further convincing proof that the Allies are not yet ready, in men and equipment, to meet the menace in the Pacific and the Far East.

Hongkong—island and city—which had been a British possession for a century, was regarded as amply fortified against enemy attack, but no shrewder move than cutting off the city's water supply made further resistance impossible—a feat which saboteurs might accomplish in almost any city under conditions of siege.

The strong Japanese drive against Manila and the Philippines, the capitulation of Guam and Wake islands, the unreadiness at Pearl Harbor and the present close approach of enemy submarines to the West Coast all point to danger of the fallacy long held by many people in the United States that all this country would have to do would be to holler "Boo!" at the Japanese and they would scurry for cover.

Poorly equipped Chinese armies are doing their best to aid in the struggle now in progress, but it is going to take superiority in men and military equipment to defeat Japan—not a mere "will to win," however important that may be. No one has denied that the Japs are fierce, ruthless and fanatic fighters, and their force must be met by superior force in order to conquer them.

With Hongkong now disposed of, Singapore becomes the next major objective—and it may be hoped that sufficient time has been given to prepare more adequately for defense of that vitally important area.

War in Russia and in Libya has been going well for the Allied cause but this can not be said of the Far Eastern situation and it is there that the United States will likely meet the most immediate of the severe tests that future days, weeks and months will bring.

Labor Peace Until Victory's Won

AGREEMENT of industrial labor and management to a no-strike policy for the duration of the war is creditable action on the part of all concerned, and may eventually lead to development of methods whereby all such controversies can be subjected to peaceful settlement.

While war is in progress, with the fate of the nation hanging in the balance, it is of highest importance that there be no interruption of industrial production, not only of war materials but of consumer goods as well, as these are necessary to maintenance of millions of people engaged in either military or non-military pursuits.

Appointment of a war labor board, to make recommendations in any disputes that may arise, follows the course of the first World war procedure and there will be confidence that this board will make every effort to deal fairly in its consideration of controversial matters.

In view of the close hook-up of all forms of transportation with actual war needs, it may be hoped that men employed in that line of work will also recognize the need for peaceful settlement of differences and that the sporadic flare-ups of bus strikes that have been prevalent in recent months and weeks will come to an end, so that there may be no further interruption in this branch of service.

Large Volume of Holiday Mail

THE AMOUNT of mail to foreign lands has been reduced to a mere trickle by the war that engulfs the whole world. In spite of that fact, Christmas mail in this country was considerably above last year's volume. When travel to Europe and Asia became impossible, Americans did not stop traveling. They simply switched to the endless variety of scenes and recreation available in this hemisphere. It seems to be the same story in the matter of holiday mail.

A goodly portion of the Christmas mail went to men in the nation's armed forces in all parts of the world. And Uncle Sam promised that packages and letters would follow those to whom they were addressed, if the men had been recently moved, whether merely to camps in this country or to distant outposts.

It was hardly necessary to urge the American people to go ahead with Christmas, not merely "as usual," but better than ever before. That was their determination from the start, and the ugly Japanese surprise, thrust into the holiday season, didn't alter it.

Another Story of Heroism

TRUE TALES of heroism come in increasing volume in eye-witness accounts of the battle at Pearl Harbor. They will never be exhausted while any survivor of that engagement lives. Their telling may do us all good if we hear them humbly and thoughtfully.

One story tells of a hero on a ship already aflame and under heavy bombing attack. The eye-witness reports:

"A Negro mess attendant who never before had fired a gun manned a machine gun on the bridge until his ammunition was exhausted. The attack lasted from 7:55 a. m. until 9:15 a. m., and probably 70 planes attacked us."

That mess boy's courage, resourcefulness and loyalty may some day earn for other brave Negro lads the right, hitherto denied them, to fighting jobs in their country's navy.

Schoenbrunn Attracts Many

THE village of Schoenbrunn, authentic restoration of the first town in Ohio, was the most popular of the eleven memorial state parks with visitors this year, according to a State Historical society report.

A total 117,000 persons had visited Schoenbrunn this year by November 1 and the number visiting all state memorials was 1,131,888 persons, 266,000 over 1940.

Quoted by Newsweek as "neatest crack on the Japanese attack"—Ellen Wilkinson, Labor M. P. and home office official: "People who live in wooden houses shouldn't throw bombs."

An unanswered question is what happened to the "undecided" 7½ per cent in those Gallup polls.

Recognize Importance of Planes

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

AVIATION not only has developed itself, since World War No. 2 started, into a fighting arm at least as important as land armies and surface navies, and maybe even more important than they are, but also, to judge by airmen's predictions, it's destined to make railroads as extinct as stage coaches after the present strife is over.

The selection recently of two hard-boiled flyers, Generals Delos C. Emmons and C. L. Tinker, for virtual command of Hawaii's defense forces, in connection with the military shake-up there, testified to Washington's estimate of the planes' consequence in the warfare of today and the future.

The Hawaiian reorganization didn't call off Supreme Justice Owen J. Roberts' committee's investigation of the previous management of the islands' defensive equipment, but it did emphatically stress recognition of the vital necessity of competent control overhead, both protective and offensively.

Warplane requirements, however, have done more than supply craft needed for beligerent purposes. They've shown to plane makers what they're capable of in the production of huge vessels suitable for the transportation of enormous loads, of freight as well as passengers.

Just now their plants are more than fully occupied in filling governmental orders, but they're looking ahead to a tremendous expansion in their industry for subsequent peace time utility.

Planes As Carriers.

President Philip Johnson of the Boeing Aircraft company already has suggested aviation's possibilities as carriers in developing practically transportationless countries, which are only awaiting such facilities to be settled up. Railroad and highway building is so expensive and takes so long that capital's difficult to find for it. Furthermore, it would take quite awhile for it to begin yielding returns.

I've had occasion to refer before to South America's dependence upon aviatorial travel. The continent's scarcely tapped by rail and its highways are of the most primitive sort. Besides, over a vast expanse of it, rail and highways can be kept navigable only by everlasting attention and tinkering, or the jungle eats 'em up. The country's vastly rich in resources, but it has stayed largely uninhabitable because settlers, even if they succeeded in getting in, couldn't get out.

With aviation's advent, the Latins took to it like a dog to a bone, much faster than we did in the United States. Hitherto, though, it's been equal to not much more than passenger and mail carrying, very little freight.

Africa and the greater part of Asia are in the same fix.

If post-war planes can do what such experts as Phil Johnson promises, these realms are due to draw like magnets from overpopulated parts of the earth. As to the southern half of Asia, it's frightfully crowded now, but the northern half isn't, and neither are South America and Africa, except in a few small spots.

It's true that big planes run into considerable money to build, but nothing like the figures involved in manufacturing surface rolling stock, and they ask for no roadbeds at all. A taking off and landing field, here and there, suits 'em perfectly.

Authorities like Phil Johnson don't forecast the extinction of railroads in the United States and Europe in any desperate rush.

They do say, though, that they think there'll be less and less inclination to replace 'em, as they gradually fall into impossible disrepair, and that, in 100 years or so, there'll be a lot less of their mileage left than there is today.

I'm bound to say that the railroad managements don't seem in the least worried, but I don't suppose the horse-drawn coach lines did, when steam transportation was in its incipiency.

Listen World!

Satisfied Sniffers

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THESE pompous, positive people . . . so satisfied with themselves . . . parading through life like sanctified floorwalkers—

Do they terrify you? They did me, for a long time. In vain I'd clutch my few poor rags of self-esteem and assure myself that I wasn't a criminal or an idiot. One cool glance, one snooty sniff, reduced me instanter to the status of a worm. There they'd stand, looking like a whole Supreme Court, while I cringed, blushed, gargled and made funny faces.

God, Himself, seemed inferior to these majestic mammals. What wisdom . . . what strength! How wonderful to be so perfect! Never to be tortured by doubts and fears... never to write under ridicule or condemnation! Marvelous, thought I, overcome with awe and envy.

But not any more! For I've made a discovery—an amazing and heartening discovery, which has toppled these demigods off their perch and rid my heart of fear. I've discovered why they are that way. It isn't, as I once thought, because they're so good or wise or strong. It's simply because—

They HAVE NO IMAGINATION!

Recently I found a line in an old book which sums them up perfectly. "People without imagination are always cocksure... they've been given the power of intimidating and exhausting those who have! The man with imagination is frightened at what he sees in himself. The thought of trying to govern others is abhorrent to him."

Imagination—what a beating it can and does give us! Consider yourself. Are you ever sure that you have done the right thing...the kind or cautious or sensible thing? Are you ever sure that you are making a good impression?

Of course you aren't. To the contrary, you are constantly goaded by secret doubt and terror, disgust and regret. If only you'd acted differently...or hadn't acted at all! If only you'd kept your fool mouth shut instead of blabbing everything you knew! What an ass you've made of yourself...what a brute! How can anyone ever love or trust you?

And look at the consequences! Like a dreadful mirage you see those consequences spreading endlessly before you...wasted money, lost friendship, ruined reputation.

Do you ever enjoy a proud or peaceful moment? Can you ever say, "I have honestly done the best I could?" Indeed you don't—and can't. Like an avenging fury, your imagination drives you on and on—into ever-deepening doubt and despair.

On the other hand, consider these complacent citizens. Are they beset by such doubt and remorse? Of course they aren't. Lacking imagination, they also lack curiosity and that yen for adventure which makes messes of most of us.

Inwardly, they are almost as elemental as a fishworm. They have only a few simple urges—all based on self-preservation. Hence their unfailing prudence and propriety. Not being inquisitive, they are never restless or reckless...nor given to sour introspection.

Having done a thing in a (to them) suitable manner, Therefore, they are supremely content with themselves—and suspicious of anyone who differs from them.

You and I, being only too aware of our own weakness, dare not criticize the other fellow. Knowing that there are many sides to any question we are, perforce, tolerant. But they feel prepared to judge anyone, everyone, including Jehovah and the whole hierarchy of saints.

Remember the iron dog and deer that used to stand on grandma's lawn? That's what they are really like—these self-righteous censors of the human race. Don't be afraid of them. Pity them, instead. They're solid inside! Better one second of quivering ecstacy or fury than an eternity of their torpid complacency.

Shortage of Materials and Tools Slows Navy Expansion Program

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The action of the house naval affairs committee in slashing the proposed expansion of our two-ocean navy was due chiefly to shortages of materials and construction equipment.

However, Rear Admiral Samuel Robinson, chief of the bureau of ships, ran into a blunt barrage of questions about the worth of the battleship under modern combat conditions. Committee members sharply suggested that in view of the battleship's record in this war, the navy might be wise to build no more.

Robinson contended that this would be impractical, since the United States needed battleships "if our enemies continue to use them for combat purposes."

"What is your honest private opinion of the battleship?" he was asked. "Do you think this type of ship is worth all the money it costs and the time and labor required to build them?"

"I'm sorry, gentlemen, but it's not my function to answer that question," sidestepped Robinson with a smile. "I'm not a policy man. My job is to build ships after it is decided they are needed. However, I have my own ideas about the battleship."

This drew laughter, and the admiral was pressed no further.

Robinson also was quizzed closely about the high cost of certain vessels which the navy proposed in the expansion program, chiefly an aircraft carrier at an estimated $85,000,000.

"Higher labor and material costs are the biggest factors," Robinson explained. "For instance, we have a new type of armor plate for our ships which is far stronger than that used by any other nation. It costs $60 a ton, three times as much as the armor plate we formerly used."

"How about the labor supply?" "We have plenty of labor to carry out our shipbuilding program," Robinson said. "Also plenty of facilities. Getting materials and machine tools is our big problem right now. However, the shortage doesn't amount to a bottleneck. In fact, production is running a little ahead of schedule and will be greatly expedited by next spring."

Dies Agent.

THE press agent of New York's Stanley theater, which shows Russian pictures, received a phone call from a man who said he was a Dies committee agent. He asked for a pass to see the Soviet film at the Stanley.

"I'm sorry," said the publicity man, "but the manager is getting rather strict about passes. I'll have to pretend you are a drama critic."

"That's all right with me," said the Dies agent.

Result was that the agent of Communist-hating Dies got a pass as the drama critic of the Communist "Daily Worker."

Willkie and FDR.

SELDOM in political history has a president of the United States received such wholesome support on major foreign policy from a defeated candidate as Franklin Roosevelt has received from Wendell Willkie. Few people know how active Willkie has been behind the scenes.

For instance, Willkie has even done some missionary work on Joe Martin, chairman of the Republican national committee and opposition leader of the house. Willkie remains on very friendly terms with his old campaign manager, even though they differed on foreign policy.

Shortly after the congressional vote to repeal the Neutrality Act, in which the Republicans nearly defeated Roosevelt, Willkie phoned Joe Martin.

"Joe," he said, "those Republicans who voted against repeal of neutrality are going to have a tough time being re-elected. They're going to find the country is behind Roosevelt on this."

The Republican national chairman replied that he would not only re-elect all the Republicans who voted against Roosevelt, but he would also elect a lot of new Republicans to fill the seats of the Democrats who had voted with Roosevelt.

"Listen," said Willkie, "if you re-elect 80 per cent of those who voted against the president you'll be the greatest political genius of all time."

"And," said Willkie in telling the story to a friend afterward, "a few days later there was Joe himself voting with Roosevelt for a declaration of war."

Jap Bombing.

UNITED STATES experts are not deprecating the potency of the Japanese air force, but its operations in the first weeks of the war have disclosed certain significant facts.

One is that the Japanese navy fliers seem more accurate in bombing than their army pilots.

Jamp bombing accuracy in the Pearl Harbor attack was most effective, and this treacherous operation was carried out by naval planes. This was the first time the Jap naval air arm had been seen in action by our observers.

The Japanese have been very secretive about their naval air force, and it is not believed to have participated in any bombing of China, where Japanese aim has been notoriously poor. The navy fliers' accuracy at Pearl Harbor, therefore, was noted with great interest by our experts—particularly as it was in striking contrast to the inferior marksmanship of Japanese army bombers in the Philippines. Despite frequent raids, they have done no important damage. Also they have been blasted out of the sky by our planes whenever they can catch them.

The fact that the Japs have been using their army air force in the attempted Philippine invasion is considered significant. From this it is being deduced that the better trained navy air arm is spread out very thin and is being used chiefly for special purposes.

Mail Bag.

C. H. S., Sacramento, Calif.—According to the clerk of the United States district court in Los Angeles, the tax lien against Dr. Francis E. Townsend has not been satisfied and discharged. Amount of the lien is $20,412.92. (The lien is usually more than the actual amount of tax delinquency, to cover other charges.) Bureau of Internal Revenue states that the case against Dr. Townsend is still outstanding . . .

C. R. V., St. Louis, Mo.—The reason civil service employes pay a higher tax rate than officers in military service is because the American Leigon and other veterans' organizations have successfully lobbied in favor of special tax consideration for service men, past and present. The exemption is stated in Section 19.22 A-3, Regulation 103, of the income tax law.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—This is a personal message to Ray Peacock's friends back home in La Crosse, Wis. We call him Ray of the Rialto around here because more and more his chores take him into the byways of Broadway.

Ray was among those present the other night when Olsen and Johnson undraped their musical hurdy-gurdy at the Winter Garden. That is the melange of madness known as "Sons O' Fun."

During the operations, which last some four hours, the fat Mr. Johnson hurries onstage and begins to pitch eggs at the audience. I have often seen newspapermen toss eggs at actors, but this was the first time I ever saw an actor pitch live hen fruit at the press.

IT happened this way: Mr. Johnson wound up and let fly with a beautiful in-curve. It sailed out over 14 rows of cash customers. One of them thrust up his hand. This hand deflected the egg to such an extent that it showered a nice creamy yellow and white goo in all directions, particularly over Mr. Peacock's coat, tie, and new homberg.

It was an unprogrammed bit of comedy that laid the admiring onlookers in the aisles. Later, when Mr. Johnson heard about this, he was horrified.

This was his explanation: "I have a boy who punches holes in those eggs and blows out the stuff with a pump. He missed on one of them, dad-burn his hide. I was pitching 'em up fast, and I knew that egg was a little too heavy, but by that time it was too late."

P. S. It cost Ray 85 cents to have his new homburg cleaned.

I SPENT an hour in the record shops of Rockefeller Center, selecting gifts for friends. Suddenly I heard the familiar voice of Erroll Flynn, followed by his ringing laugh. There in a booth this Irish actor was howling at some absurd recording which had gotten next to his funny bone. In a few moments I heard Ronald Colman's voice, and I was wondering whether I had stumbled onto a sort of Hollywood day in Manhattan when I realized that Coleman's voice wasn't Coleman in person at all—it was a recording.

Ronald Colman got together with about 20 actors last October and recorded Dickens' famous Christmas Carol (Decca). It stopped me in my tracks, as this saga of old Scrooge and wee Tiny Tim always does.

For this is the one "must" that almost everybody, from the President of the U. S. on down, reads to their families on Christmas Eve. Though recordings of this classic are nothing new, it does gain in interest through a man like Ronald Colman, who is so familiar to everyone that hearing his voice read the familiar lines give it an intimacy that somehow makes it your own.

NO SOONER had war been declared than the press agent of a New York nightclub began piling sandbags all around his club. Of course, he was arrested. Of course, that was just what he hoped would happen. When you get arrested, you get your name in the newspapers. And that's the business of every press agent.

A Farmer's Diary

High School Gang

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

OUR RURAL village, on a bend of the Clearfork, has a modern school with a terraced lawn and a smooth athletic field. There is a gymnasium-auditorium, a cafeteria, a wide awake staff of young teachers. There is a big brass band, with jaunty blue and white uniforms.

The Freshman Gang—which we hear most about at our house—is a budding social unit of teen age boys and girls. They are, at various times, decorous Scouts in uniform—romping tomboys and rowdies—young ladies and young gentlemen. Their versatility extends from hiking and biking, skating, dancing and hayriding to rendering a creditable musical, literary or dramatic program.

Their official greeting is "Hi!" with a wave of the arm. They hunt for thrills.

One day last fall a buggyload of girls came to our place, three deep in a high old vehicle with a fat horse in work harness hitched between the shafts. Behind them trailed the masculine element, on bikes, as advisory escort. At the end of our road, they traded places and the girls rode the bikes while the boys urged along the nag. We saw their dust.

Another time they somersaulted in our haymow, jumped off the beams and slid in the straw. One youth even climbed up to the big barn roof and straddled the comb. He came down over the caves to the top of the big doors while a playmate held them steady.

("I wasn't there, I only state what was told to me by the Chinese plate.")

The boys are known by such endearing nicknames as "Bucky," "Ducky," "Wrinkle," "Tor," "Hill Billy" and "Glamor Pants." A tall loose-jointed boy is "Spindle Bolt." For days one venerable 17-year-old was "Pop" and his girl friend "Mom," while the others were "us chillen"—"one happy family."

They collect from their friends such trophies as hair ribbons, caps and socks. They give each other gifts—flowers, candy, Bermuda onions. They dote on quantities of odd food at odd hours—and they like to prepare it.

At local games, they yell, turn flipflops, cartwheels, handsprings—stage snake dances and bonfires for the glory of their team. Their exuberant school spirit is known to all neighboring villages.

Sound foolish, do they? How was it when you yourself were around fifteen?

The other night between halves of the basketball game, the lights went out. A spotlight shone upon a rippling American flag at the center of the floor. A Boy Scout and a Girl Scout stood at salute. There was a moment of awed hush—and then a cheer! Both opposing schools sang together lustily, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee. . . ."

There's unbounded hope in the knowledge that thousands of villages have such young folks growing up—sweet capable girls with bobs and pigtails; manly boys with strength and an organized spirit of fair play. Their comaraderie is a decent democratic thing that augurs well for the future of all of us. Perhaps they may do better than we have done at bringing justice, order and then peace to this wonderful old world.

Painting Exhibited at Church

The above painting, the work Mrs. Beryl McCready of Mansfield, is being exhibited at the Park Avenue Baptist church. The painting, which shows the Mother Mary and Child, with small figures of soldiers in the foreground, symbolizes sacrifice. The painting, which is seven and one-half feet tall and three and one-half feet wide, is placed at the back of the chancel, with Christmas trees banking it and red drapes forming a background.

MEETING SET ON TAX SPLIT

Governor To Meet Committee of Mayors Jan. 7 on State Surplus.

Gov. John W. Bricker today had set Jan. 7 as the date on which he will confer with a special committee of Ohio mayors seeking a special session of the legislature for the distribution of excess tax revenues.

A committee appointed by Mansfield's city council attended an organization meeting in Columbus two weeks ago in which 250 local government representatives made a demand for a share of the sales tax surplus and appointed the special committee.

Councilman Fred Miller, who led the Mansfield delegation, said that the group was "keeping in touch with developments" and would solicit the support of Mansfield clubs and other organizations to get a surplus share for development of the municipal airport.

The governor has said repeatedly that he will not call a special session of the legislature for distribution of a surplus estimated from $11,000,000 to $20,000,000.

MARY ANNA STAHL WEDS JAMES B. AU

Nuptial Vows Exchanged By Couple on Christmas Day at 3:30 P. M. In Home of Bride's Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Stahl.

ON CHRISTMAS DAY in a setting of palms, a tall, lighted Christmas tree and single lighted tapers Miss Mary Anna Stahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Stahl, 86 Dawson avenue, exchanged nuptial vows with James Burdette Au, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Au, R. D. 1, Lucas. The ceremony was solemnized at 3:30 p. r in the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Samuel Parrett, pastor of the Mansfield Gospel Center.

For her wedding the bride, who was accompanied by her father, wore a white formal gown of embroidered net fashioned princess style with a fitted bodice, long full sleeves and a full skirt. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls and she wore a finger tip veil attached to a coronet of white roses, lilacs and sweet peas.

Miss Martha Au, sister of the bridegroom, was maid-of-honor. She wore a pink taffeta formal gown fashioned princess style with short, puffed sleeves and a full skirt. She carried a semi-colonial bouquet of pink sweet peas and yellow roses. William Stahl, brother of the bride, served as best man.

Preceding and during the ceremony nuptial music was furnished by Biss Alleyene Leibhard, pianist. Some of her selections were "The World Is Waiting for the Sun Rise," "Indian Love Call," "A Wearyin' for You," and the traditional wedding marches. Mrs. Stahl appeared at her daughter's wedding attired in a royal blue crepe street length frock with navy blue accessories and a corsage of sweet peas and roses. Mrs. Au wore a black street length frock with white and black accessories and wore a corsage of sweet peas and roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for 30 guests. Luncheon was served buffet style from a long table centered with a three-tiered wedding cake and decorated with flowers and lighted tapers. The couple is now on a wedding trip through Michigan. For traveling the bride wore a gray wool tailored frock with black accessories and a corsage of pink rose buds. Upon their return they will reside temporarily at 86 Dawson avenue.

Miss Stahl is a graduate from Mansfield Senior high school and has been employed at the Mansfield General hospital. Mr Au graduated from Lucas high school and is now engaged in farming near Lucas. Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Snyder of Perrysville, Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Kessler of Bucyrus, Joseph, Richard and Vivian Au of Lucas and Mrs. Simmons of Perrysville.

Dr. Mark Wolcott Marries Dec. 20 In Philadelphia

Announcement is being made today of the marraige of Dr. Mark W. Wolcott, of Philadelphia, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Wolcott, 689 Maple street, and Miss Elizabeth Frey, also of Philadelphia, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Hudson Frey, of Weatherly, Pa. The wedding took place on Dec. 20 in the Valley Forge chapel at Valley Forge, Pa. Rev. John R. Hart, Episcopalian minister, performed the ceremony at 4 p. m., in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives of the couple.

Wedding music was played by Miss Edna Knon, organist, preceding the exchange of vows. Matron of honor was Mrs. William P. Stewart and best man was Albert W. Hartman of Philadelphia.

Bride's street-length dress was of aqua. She wore black and aqua accessories and had an orchid corsage. Mrs. Stewart was attired in dusty rose with which she wore black accessories and a shoulder corsage of Talisman roses and violets.

A reception was held at the chapel immediately after the ceremony. Wedding supper was served at the Old Bookbinder's Inn in Philadelphia. Dr. and Mrs. Wolcott will live at 4004 Pine street in that city.

The bridegroom was graduated from Mansfield senior high school, Lehigh university and the University of Pennsylvania medical school. He is serving his internship at the hospital of the latter university. His bride is supervisor of nurses at the same hospital, where she also received her training.

Mr. and Mrs. M P Wolcott went to Valley Forge and Philadelphia for their son's wedding.

Wedding of Miss Miriam Oswalt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Oswalt, R. D. 2, and Max S. Dye, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dye, 266 Superior street, was an event of Christmas day. Vows were exchanged at 2:30 p. m. in the First English Lutheran church with Rev. Grover E. Swoyer officiating. Palms and a large basket of poinsettias decorated the altar. At each side was a seven-branch candelabra with lighted tapers.

Guests were shown to their places by Earl Swigert, cousin of the bridegroom, and Albert Kipp, brother-in-law of the bride Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented. Mrs. Clayson Bell, organist, played "Liebestraum," by Liszt, and "Intermezzo," by Provost, after which Miss Anita McLaughlin sang "Because," by D'Hardelot, and "Indian Love Call," by Friml. Next organ number was "Ave Maria," by Schubert. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used for the processional and during the ceremony Mrs. Bell played "I Love You Truly," by Bond.

Miss Oswalt was given in marriage by her father. Her wedding ensemble consisted of a blue velvet street length gown with matching hat and veil. She wore a rhinestone necklace, gift of the bridegroom. 2. Wash garments seperately, by hand.
3. Use lukewarm suds: Dissolve Super Suds completely in warm water, add cold for lukewarm suds.

Free Speech Important For a Child

By GARRY MYERS, Ph.D.

One of the largest elements of personality is speech. He who speaks clearly, effectively, comfortably is, to that degree, a likable person.

Self-consciousness hampers one in speech and renders one less easy to listen to, and less attractive. Such handicaps also impair one's thinking.

Young people who expect to have children of their own should cultivate ease and effectiveness in speech and should continue this after they become parents.

In the presence of an infant and growing child try to employ good models of speech. When he begins to use formal language, be patient and appreciative. Don't let yourself smile or laugh at his serious questions and remarks. You should try to say nothing and do nothing to cause him to be self-conscious about speech and you should protect him from the ridicule of other adults.

Allow Child to Talk.

As soon as the child will look at a picture for even a half a minute, begin to read to him, putting away the book as soon as he shows lack of interest. Gradually he will learn to enjoy listening. Then read more and more to him as he grows older, even past the age of six or eight. As he learns at school to read, encourage him to read for pleasure and enjoyment.

In the family circle, even when there are guests, your child should be allowed to talk freely while he also learns to listen courteously as others speak. He will learn not to talk too much.

Set the stage so the growing child will, as early as possible, play with other children, settle his own quarrels, and fight his own battles.

A selected list of books on cultivating good personality and mental health may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp; also a list of books from which to read to the baby and young child.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

My father stopped speaking and looked at me. I say that he had "extended the scepter" to me, and expected an answer to his decision concerning my impersonation of Lillian—with its limitation.

"I am so grateful, father," I said with truth, for I had a queer, insistent intuition that something extremely valuable in our search for Marion might develop in the restaurant interview.

"And I am sure," I went on, "that I can meet your 'one condition.' "

"I do not think you will be so sure when I tell you what the one condition is," he said. "It is simply this: If Richard gives his consent to this expedition of yours, I shall lift my ban upon it. But if he objects—and you cannot remove his qualms—then I am adamant."

Counts On Dicky.

I had an answer to that, and I gave it forthwith.

"If he knows that you have given your consent, and if you tell him your reasons for your decision, I am sure that he will make no objection—no permanent one, I mean," I amended hastily. For I had a vision of Dicky's reaction when I first should broach my scheme to him.

"Yes I can imagine—very vividly—what your husband will say when he first hears of this scheme. But you have my full consent to tell him that I approve, and to refer him to me if he becomes intractable."

I made a mental resolve to get my husband's consent to my plan without appealing to my father for aid. But aloud I only uttered a demure "Thank you!"

He appraised me with a glance that suddenly had something comradely in it.

"I imagine you can make Richard see your point of view," he said. "You do not expect him until late this afternoon, do you?"

"Perhaps not until late tonight," I answered. "It all depends on how much trouble he has with Carolyn."

"Carolyn!" my father repeated angrily. "I believe, if the truth were known—"

He broke off abruptly, but I knew that if he had finished his sentence, he would have said that if we could solve the enigma which was Carolyn, we would have the clues to Marion's mysterious disappearance in our hands.

"Ronald will be here earlier?" he asked.

Must See Noel.

My father looked at his watch.

"If you are not delayed," he said, "you will have time to see Noel before Ronald arrives. Of course Ronald will wish to see you as soon as he comes in, but I am afraid he will have to put up with me as a substitute."

I shot an amazed look at him. I knew how closely he earmarked every one of his waking minutes, yet here he was proposing, if I understood him aright, to spend an indefinite amount of time or Ronald.

In another second I comprehended the answer. He wished nothing to interfere with my projected interview with Noel, and he would make any sacrifice of his own time in order to insure that I would not be interrupted while I was talking to my niece's husband on the extremely delicate subject of Mary's continuing, for patriotic reasons, the companionship with Stephen Redfield which had so roused Noel's jealous anger.

"I shall wait in the hotel until your interview with Noel is concluded," my father said. "Shall we go back now to your sitting room, so that you can help Mary get out those copies of the code 'personal' for the newspapers? Then there will be nothing to delay your meeting with Noel."

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Dec. 27.

Judging by certain astral auguries there may be a surprising push to neglected affairs, by a most decisive and telling stroke of genius or well-organized initiative. The impulses will be under high gear for attacking difficult situations with precision and energy, bringing enduring returns and fair fortune. But there is danger of being carried to excess or rash moves.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of unlooked for opportunity for progress, probably in a new and exciting direction which may lead to sound and enduring gain if properly managed. A tendency to impetuous, reckless and imprudent action may negative very practical, ingenious and progressive enterprise. Count the cost before applying high-powered endeavors.

A child born on this day will be progressive, enterprising and creative in exceptional ways, but is likely to permit its impulses to run away with it to its detriment.

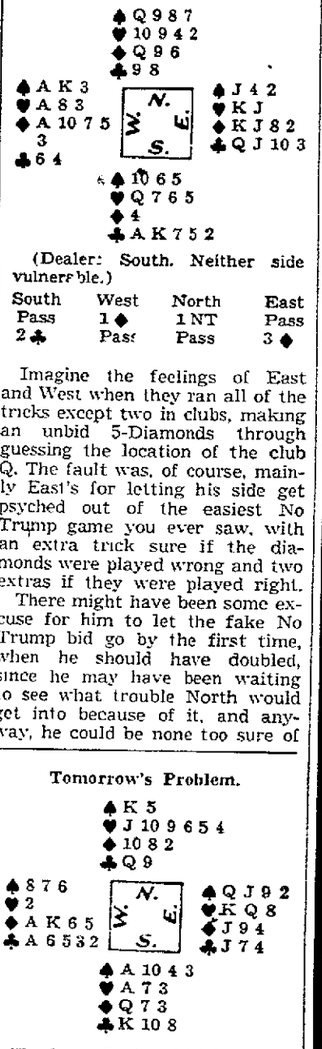
"The Authority on Authorities"

LISTEN AND THEN THINK

If you don't hear the various bids around the table, there is no hope for you. You have no chance to figure out what is going on. But if you do hear, you are in the dark unless you reflect a bit upon what you have heard and make a few deductions. The most important fact to be learned from the various bids may not be any one thing said by any one bid, but some utterly different piece of information based upon the entire structure woven by them all.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♦	1 NT	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	Pass	3 ♦

Imagine the feelings of East and West when they ran all of the tricks except two in clubs, making an unbid 5-Diamonds through guessing the location of the club Q. The fault was, of course, mainly East's for letting his side get psyched out of the easiest No Trump game you ever saw, with an extra trick sure if the diamonds were played wrong and two extras if they were played right.

There might have been some excuse for him to let the fake No Trump bid go by the first time, when he should have doubled, since he may have been waiting to see what trouble North would get into because of it, and anyway, he could be none too sure of his partner's opening bid. But when North passed his partner's 2-Clubs, East should have taken some kind of emphatic action himself. A mild way to do it would have been with 2-No Trumps, whereupon West would have raised to 3-No Trumps.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

If the bidding on this deal is 1-Diamond by South, 2-Clubs by West, 2-Spades by East, 2-No Trumps by South, 3-Hearts by North and 3-No Trumps by South, what suit is the very worst of all for West to lead, and why?

CHAPTER XXVI

"I get it. You know, I've been afraid you might think I was going to prove very objectionable whenever I had an opportunity. And I don't want to do that. I want so that you should like me a little. Having you to myself for just a few minutes means so much. I had to try it . . . just so I could let you know that I still love you very much."

"Please—"

"That's all I'm going to say . . . this time. I just wanted to get it on the record. I'd never hurt you. But it can't harm you to know the truth." He said no more.

* * *

When the house was reached, Dennison gathered up his bundles, stepped out of the car and came around to Carol's side. She already had the door open and was on her feet. Chester held out his free hand and she laid hers in it. The rays of the street lamp lighted her face clearly, framed in the fur of her turned-up collar. Her head was bare and her smooth hair shone like burnished metal.

"Well?" she questioned with an uneasy little laugh as he made no move to assist her.

"You are so very lovely," he sighed.

"What's the matter, Chuckie?" Wilbur Lennon looked down a trifle anxiously at his younger brother who lay on the dining-room couch. Their mother was in the kitchen washing the supper dishes.

"Nothing, I guess," Charlie answered with an attempted smile. "Just tired."

"What have you been up to today?"

"Oh, fooling around in the shop most of the time. Working on that flying boat model . . . can't seem to get the shape of the hull quite right. Going slow."

"Need any materials?"

"Not just now. Wige . . . do you have to work tonight?"

"I was going to the office for a little while to clean up a bunch of reports that have gotten ahead of me. Tell you what, though. I'll play a game of checkers with you first if you like."

"Doesn't that Mr. Dennison help you any more with the office work?"

"Don't see him so much, now," Wige answered shortly. "Want to play?"

"I don't believe I will tonight, thanks. Before you go I'll let you help me upstairs, if you don't mind. I'll crawl in bed and read until I get sleepy."

Later, when Wige was assisting Charlie in removing his outer clothing the boy remarked wistfully: "I wish you didn't have to work nights all the time like you do. I never see you much any more."

"It has been pretty steady, hasn't it? But it will ease up after a little. The plant office will be ready for us to move into within the next couple of weeks. Then I understand there are several people coming here from the main office. I won't have so many different sorts of jobs then."

"But you will have a job still?"

"Sure. I'll tell you a secret, Chuckie. One of the department heads was here the other day . . . sort of an auditor. He told me that they liked the way I'd been handling things here and I ought to be in line for something better when the plant gets into production. I hope he wasn't kidding me."

"Wige. Sit down on the bed a minute. I want to ask you about something?"

"Shoot." Wige attempted to say it carelessly, but his manner suddenly was constrained.

"Why are you working so hard just now?"

"Why do you suppose? It's a new job and it looks like it had a future. I want to get ahead as fast as I can . . . make a bunch of money. You know I didn't make so much all the while I was in the bank."

"That isn't the reason," Charlie observed sagely. "I know it isn't."

"Then what is it, young fellow?"

"It's Carol."

"Nonsense!" It was the first time he had uttered a harsh word to Charlie since the boy's illness. But the latter answered steadily:

"I'm old enough to understand things . . . things I hear, too. I know you still love Carol and that's why you are so different now."

"I'm not different, Chuckie . . . just busy."

"Yes, you are. You never go to see her any more. I know that. And you never bring her to see me. I like her, too. It all happened since she got rich. She used to like you. I don't see what difference it makes. It's spoiling everything for all of us. It might take you a long time to get as rich as she is . . ."

"You're on the wrong track," Wige said quietly. "Carol and I are good friends and that's all we ever were . . . or will be, I guess."

"That isn't so," Charlie argued stubbornly. "You know it isn't. Can't you do something? You know I love Mom . . . but you're so . . . so different. I don't want to go on . . . not having you." He choked a little over the last words.

With a quick move Wige slipped his arm under the thin shoulders of the boy who had thrown himself on his pillows. His face was very close to Charlie's.

"You and I are men, Chuck," he said. "We can't go soft. But we're brothers, too, and some day probably we'll just have each other. That's what I'm counting on and you've got to help, too. My new chance meant only one thing when it was offered to me. It means only one thing now. I'm willing to work my head off to make good and every dollar I can scrape together is being saved for just one thing. Can't you guess, you little dumbbell?" he finished in a voice that was tender and gruff at the same time.

Charlie shook his head slowly.

"I want you to be well, old man, if it's humanely possible. That's all that counts with me right now. I'm going to be a big shot in that plane factory one of these days, and I want you there, too. See? I'll bet you those treatments will do the trick and it won't be so long now I hope. No longer than it has to be. So keep that in the back of your mind."

Charlie's eyes lighted up. Then the weary look came back into them. Again he shook his head slowly.

"That would be nice, Wige . . . it's nice of you. But I won't let you. Ever."

"What do you mean? It's my money."

"I know. And I know it would be only an experiment. Experiments lots of times don't work. I've tried them. The money would be wasted then. I can get along as I am well enough. You've got a chance to live like other people and be happy like other people. You're not going to throw away your chance on me. I won't let you."

"Just how are you going to stop me? I'm bigger than you are." Wige tried to say it jokingly.

"I can find a way . . . if you make me. But I won't let you do that. I won't."

"Okay." Wige removed his arm and his hand rumpled his brother's hair in passing. "We'll fight about this when the time comes. And I'll soon have a chance to play with you more. It's a promise. Is there anything I can get you while I'm in town tonight?"

"No, thanks. If you'll lay that magazine by the lamp where I can reach it after a while."

"Sure. Good night, Chuckie."

Downstairs, Wige found his mother in her usual chair beside the dining-room table, her lap full of mending.

"Is there something wrong with the kid?" he demanded. "I mean isn't he feeling so well?"

"I don't think his trouble's any worse." Amanda did not raise her eyes. "He doesn't talk much to his mother. The same as you."

"I thought he seemed sort of down in the mouth tonight."

"Did you just notice that? You could have seen it weeks ago. And done something about it."

Wige turned on his heel and left the room. He was in no mood for an argument, not on that score.

The office was dark when he arrived. He had just settled down to work at his desk when the door opened and Dennison came in whistling cheerily.

"Hello!" he remarked with a good-natured smile. "Don't you ever miss an evening here? You must have been boning up on the wages and hours law."

"I just came in," Wige returned briefly, "and I'm not staying long tonight."

"How's that brother of yours?"

"About the same, thanks."

"Well, I hope you're keeping track of your overtime here. It's been a big help to us."

"I am."

"You can be taking it easier before long . . . get back into Jericho's social whirl." He looked at Wige through half-closed eyes as he leisurely lighted a cigaret. "You've got to play around a little, you know."

Wige made no reply and Dennison dropped into the revolving chair in front of his own desk. He lifted one foot and rested it on a stack of papers, blew smoke into the air as he resumed reflectively:

"Speaking of social life, I dropped in at Delaine's house the other evening and played cards with him and the fellow who's boarding there. Funny thing. When I first saw that little guy I was ready to break him over my knee. I still don't know where he got his tip and was able to get into us for that jackpot. And I don't care, I don't suppose the town realizes that he's its most interesting character. He's the most curious combination of wit and philosophy I ever met. I get a great kick out of him. Don't you?"

"I've always liked him." Wige was wearing an eye shade that concealed his expression, but the other man could have seen his jaw tighten with the words.

GEN. JOHNSON:

GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — It has been said before, but never so truly, as of one recent day, that too much is happening in Washington in nearly every 24 hours for even an informed man to be sure of the meaning of it.

The Churchill visit was momentous but not new. As soon as we were engaged in 1917 most of the belligerents of the associated powers' sent similar technical and political commissions for much the same purpose, and like this one, principally to assure supplies and coordinated military and naval aid.

Gen. Johnson.

There is this difference, that in his formal statement and press interview, Mr. Churhill laid down some principles. From a strictly military standpoint they are models of professional correctness.

There is to be unity of effort but no commander of the world or world general staff. God didn't make a man big enough for such a job. The separate high commands will agree together on broad principles. Each of their general staffs will work out details for its own troops. All that is 100 per cent.

The separate great areas of conflict will be separately treated and there may be unity of command in one or more. Again 100 per cent. Military resources and production are to be pooled by a joint commission and by it sent where most needed. Theoretically perfect.

Further developments have not been revealed with sufficient clarity to discuss, but these basic principles which must govern them are so sound that they can't go very far astray.

So much for the main crop of a day's reaping. It is so spectacular that few will pay much attention to others which are very important.

The creation of a single board to control all kinds of transportation and the appointment of Joe Eastman at the head of it was a long delayed and very necessary part of our war organization. If that board cooperates with OPM (and it will) it has enough power to harmonize our whole industrial organ and to make it play any tune of priorities, conservation and cooperation that OPM desires as easily as though it were a keyboard at Mr. Knudsen's fingers. If any individual or group doesn't play ball it doesn't get transportation. Since no business can live without transportation, here are the real teeth of industrial mobilization—or so it proved in 1918.

It is not necessary to emphasize the importance of the president's success in getting a labor-industry agreement against strikes and lock-outs. We all understand that. Down goes another great obstacle to productive efficiency.

The only question here is of the boards that shall administer the compact and the methods they use. If they are fair and impartial —and not another NLRB—its success is assured. One can suppose that the president has had enough of NLRB outrages.

OPM is also heard from separately. It is blanketing all industries, and putting civilian requirements under the priorities system too. Failure to do this in the first slam-bang and helter skelter days of OPM did more to disorganize its field and ruin its work than any other of its blunders.

Finally, Assistant Secretary of War Robert Patterson's testimony against having a civilian board take over actual war purchase and production was clear enough probably to kill that ill-considered proposal. It is not true that the 1918 war industries board ever did any such thing. It never made a purchase. It revealed to the armed services the best sources of supply and then helped both the armed services and those sources to get what they needed, when and where it was needed. That was enough.

In my opinion all this constitutes the greatest progress of any single day of the war.

Billion Cut In Non-Defense Cost Urged

PREDICTS BOOM YEAR FOR OHIO AGRICULTURE

Editor Urges Savings, Debt Payment To Temper Higher Earnings.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio farmers were told today they could expect one of the most prosperous years in their history in 1942 as government experts reported the state's farmlands produced bumper yields in most crops this year.

A prediction for a higher net farm revenue came from Walter H. Lloyd, editor of the Ohio Farmer, who tempered the forecast with the suggestion that farmers should pay debts and increase savings to prepare for difficulties which always follow a major war.

Ohio farm income for 1941 approximated $415,000,000, greatest since 1920. Higher prices and a larger demand arising from the war will hike the 1942 gross income greatly, but Lloyd also pointed out that operating costs would be higher.

Lloyd said that the "all-out" agricultural production requested by the government should be handled by expanding present form systems rather than by inexperienced producers shifting to the farm field. He also suggested that:

"New capital investments for such expansion should be held to a minimum: careful planning to use less hired labor and to use it more effectively is advisable; and increases in long-term debt should be avoided."

Farmers probably will be handicapped by shortages of farm labor, new equipment and perhaps fertilizer, he added.

The Ohio Co-operative Crop Reporting Service's year-end check showed that production of corn and soybeans for beans this year was substantially larger than in 1940 and that there were appreciable increases in the production of wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, and most fruits. Tobacco, buckwheat and all seed crops, except alfalfa seed, were below 1940 production scales.

Record acreage yields gave Ohio farmers larger crops despite generally less planting in 1941.

Corn yields averaged 49.5 bushels an acre compared with 38 in 1940, wheat 25 to 21.5, and soybeans 19.5 to 5.5, potatoes 122 to 103. Only the oats yield was down, from 44 bushels an acre last year to 43.5 in 1941.

RECORD HIGH

Westinghouse Pay For Year To Amount To $9,400,000.

Wages and salaries paid to employes of the Westinghouse Mansfield plant for the year 1941 will total approximately $9,400,000, Works Manager C. L. VanDereau said today.

The yearly payroll of the plant in 1940 was $6,855,666, according to VanDerau. The 1941 figure includes the estimated payroll for the month of December.

Total figures for years prior to 1940 were not available, but it was understood the 1941 total of wages and salaries will be a record high figure for the Mansfield plant.

GETS FINE AT COURT HEARING

Restaurant Manager Held Guilty of Health Rule Violation.

L. W. Holdridge manager of the Happy Harry House restaurant was fined $50 and costs in municipal court Wednesday when arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch on a charge of violating one of the sanitary rules of the Mansfield board of health.

The restaurant manager was arrested Monday on complaint of James Kuneman city sanitary officer who charged that Holdridge was employing a restaurant worker who had been warned repeatedly that he had an infectious disease.

Holdridge entered a not guilty plea but was assessed the fine following a hearing. Judge Kalbfleisch suspended the fine pending replacement of the worker in question.

ARMY READY TO RELEASE PLANT

Set To Quit Operation of Aircraft Factory as Labor Strife Ends.

(By International News Service)

BENDIX, N. J. — The U. S. army air corps was prepared today to relinquish active operation of Air Associates, Inc., and turn the company's plants back to private control.

A tentative agreement between the United Automobile Workers union, CIO, and directors of the company, settling the firms' labor difficulties, found the army ready to surrender control as soon as a formal contract can be signed.

Under terms of the tentative agreement which must be approved by the union membership and the board of directors of Air Associates, the union is given a one-year contract providing wage increases and a modified union shop. The union membership was to vote approval of the contract today while the directors were to meet Monday.

The army has operated the Air Associates plants since Oct. 31 when President Roosevelt ordered the air corps to take it over. Previous to that time production on $5,000,000 of war contracts, had been disrupted by five months bitter strike between the company and the union.

AIR RAID ALARM INTERRUPTS CHRISTMAS SHOW AT CHICAGO

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — Circumstances of the middlewest's first genuine air raid "alert" mystified the civilian populace today.

Naval authorities said they were following a policy of "watchful waiting" and reported there were "No further developments" after the 70-minute "alert" which interrupted Christmas day festivities for 9,000 men at naval stations in the Chicago area.

The alarm was sounded at 1 p. m. during a Christmas show at the Great Lakes naval training station. Hundreds of sailors swarmed into air raid shelters where they continued singing carols and navy songs. The school's theater was preparing to show the motion picture, "dive bomber."

The "all clear" signal was heard and the holiday show resumed before army, civilian defense and other authorities learned of the alarm, which naval officers insisted as not a rehearsal.

Commdr. T. DeWitt Carr, executive officer of the Great Lakes school, released an official statement announcing the "alert" was ordered after receipt of "a warning from a responsible source that eight to 12 unidentified planes, coming from the northeast, were heading west across Lake Michigan."

"There was no word of flights at the time, and, in view of the mysterious circumstances surrounding the strange planes, the alarms were given," he said. "Navy patrol planes were sent up to carry out defensive assignments, if necessary."

Carr indicated that the reported flight of planes had not been discovered by the patrol craft when he said later that their identity remained a mystery.

"Look, dear, I don't want a mink coat; I don't want a mansion; I don't want to travel! All I want is for you to stop leaving the soap in the bottom of the tub!"

Up and Down THE STREET

Some Yuletide celebrators with too much Christmas cheer and a distinct dislike for Mansfield's parking meters are being sought by police today. Police said that they were looking for the vandals who stole four parking meters near Central park and threw two of them into a creek near Lucas. Two youths found the meters in the bed of the creek early today west of Lucas and called officers. The other two meters were torn from their foundations but were not removed.

Typists in County Recorder D. D. Orwiler's office prepared today for at least a month's work on the same job. They were starting on two mortgages for a total of nearly $150,000,000 given by the Erie Railroad company to two New York banks. Each of the mortgages was included in a book of more than 100 pages. The filing fee was $196, one of the largest ever received at one time by the recorder here. Typists estimated it would require at least a month for them to record the papers in the office journals.

No longer will it be necessary for subscribers served by Newman school library to make personal trips to the librarian's desk just to make brief inquiries as to certain books and publications. The Mother's club and Parent-Teacher association of the school have jointly financed installation of a telephone which will greatly facilitate all the calls the library is receiving right now in regard to mechanical subjects and literature dealing with the war situation.

Reformatory Fugitives Caught 11 Hours After Escaping.

Two inmates of the Ohio State reformatory were apprehended by Galion police early this morning just 11 hours after they had escaped from the prison hog farm Christmas day.

The two were Charles Pence, 25, received July 10, 1938, from Adams county where he was found guilty of breaking and entering and sentenced to one to five years, and Marvin Speakman, 22, received July 16, 1940, from Franklin county on a burglary and larceny conviction.

Arthur L. Glattke, reformatory superintendent, said Merle Gow and Charles Laver, Galion policemen, saw the fugitives standing at the intersection of West Main street and U. S. Route 30-S in Galion and brought them to Galion police headquarters and later they were returned to the reformatory.

ECONOMY UNIT OUTLINES WAY TO SAVE FUNDS

Asks Abolition of CCC and NYA, Curtailment of WPA Work.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Members of the joint congressional economy committee today urged quick consideration of their recommendations for cutting $1,131,075,000 from non-defense expenditures in the next fiscal year.

Congress, after a series of brief recesses, will return for the regular session Jan. 2. President Roosevelt's budget message is expected early in January. The economy committee, in its report to the president and congress, said:

"The committee believes that in view of the improved economic situation and the vital new war conditions the agencies of government and the members of congress should have at the earliest practicable time the benefit of conclusions thus far reached by the committee, and any possible economies which now can be effected should not be deferred."

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D., Va., chairman of the committee, said in a statement accompanying the report that the committee hoped eventually to recommend reductions of $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000. The committee, composed of the spending and taxing committees of both houses and treasury and budget office officials, estimated national income for 1942 at $105,000,000,000.

The committee recommended that the economy axe fall most heavily on the civilian conservation corps, the national youth administration and the work projects administration. The first two, it said, should be abolished and their functions as training agencies for defense workers should be transferred to a new, centralized agency.

The WPA, the report said, should have its appropriations limited to $50,000,000 a month for the first three months of the next fiscal year and further appropriations, on a quarterly basis, should be reduced as much as possible.

The committee recommended that $170,000,000 be saved by cancellation of various government loan activities.

Actress Who Once Halted Panic In Theater Succumbs

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Blanche Bates Creel, who played many a spectacular stage role and once stopped an incipient panic in a Philadelphia theater, died of a heart attack after a quiet Christmas reception at her home yesterday. She was 69.

Mistress of both comedy and tragedy, Miss Bates always did the spectacular.

In 1923, while appearing in Philadelphia, a fire broke out. She took complete charge of the situation.

"There's no fire here," she yelled at the audience, "and if there were, what the hell would you do about it?"

The vigorous expletive immobilized the audience. The play went on while the fire was extinguished.

She won a phenomenal success with the Augustin Daly company in New York in "The Great Ruby." In 1905 Belasco presented her in his own play, "Girl of the Golden West."

Fables from the Forties: The other night in Lindy's a Darryl Zanuck plot was enacted in the space of just a few minutes. Some denizen of Tin Pan Alley entered and gave Kermit Goell the good word that his song, "Shepherd Serenade," had just passed the million mark in record sales, and that it would be No. 1 on the Hit Parade next week. Goell all but bowled over Johnny Broderick on his way to the telephone to tell his mother the good news.

Here was another "in spite of" Broadway success story.

Three months ago, Goell borrowed $3,000 on his insurance and opened his own music firm because he was convinced that the song he had written was a potential hit. The boys along the Gay White Way laughed heartily at him, and told him he didn't have a chance—which, except for that one-in-a-million exception, he didn't. But he did it anyway.

There came one point when he ran out of money and was on the verge of selling the song, or just dropping it as no good — when suddenly, out of the blue, Bing Crosby heard the tune and liked it and recorded it. That was all it needed; it went full speed ahead onto the Hit Parade.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

'Twas the day after Christmas, and all through the house—

There were wrappings, and string, and broken boxes, and cards that said "To," and "From," and hunks of sticky candy, and beebee shot, and tray corks, and marbles of various sorts and sizes to go with games of different kinds, and smashed tree ornaments, and all the signs that a tornado had just whirled through.

And how was it at your house this morning, neighbor?

* * *

No it wasn't a white Christmas, but it was better at that than slush and stush. Don't you think so?

The way the grass is growing in this balmy spring weather, some of us are going to have to mow our lawns any day now.

* * *

The sport world closed up for Christmas, and present indications are that it'll stay closed for a few days, so if this isn't a sport column today don't be too surprised.

The sport world did crash through with a few Christmas gifts designed to keep the old podger in top physical condition.

Such as: a carton of cigarets from Vern Hoffman and the high school basketball team; an article from Joe Tesch and the City "A" league cagers named after this country's first admiral; and one from the Colony bowling alleys to subtly remind me of my own Ancient age.

Quick, Henry, the bicarbonate!

Pop Elias is worried.

Seems he sent me a Christmas card way last Saturday, and it hasn't been delivered yet.

"It was just a little bit on the shady side," Pop admits. "Maybe Uncle Sam wouldn't let it go through his postoffice."

Why, Pop!

PARKED BY BARTHOLOME IRONS DOWN PITTSBURGH

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Sparked by Earl Barthblome, general handy man of the Cleveland Irons, the Sixth City sextet won a Christmas night game from the Pittsburgh Hornets by a 5-2 score.

Bartholome, who sharpens Barons' skates when he is not on the ice, drilled three goals into the Pittsburgh net as his contribution to the Cleveland victory.

Joe Louis Trains at Quiet Lake

Although Most Pugs Fear Air, He Thrives on It.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—Up at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., a hamlet beside a lake tucked in among the mountains, Joe Louis is preparing for another fight—the one with Buddy Baer, Jan. 9. Greenwood Lake is virtually home to him by this time. As the most active heavyweight champion in the long annals of boxing, he has been doing most of his conditioning there in the training quarters by the lakeside just a short ways down the hill from his house.

He must have played the juke box in the casino by the lakeside a thousand times by now. Huffing and puffin he has worn the rocks along the trails down smooth with his endless miles of walking and jogging, and the little arena where he sharpens up his punching against his spar mates is haunted with the echoes of the hooks and crosses he has slammed home in workouts.

Greenwood Lake is a great spot for training at any time of the year. It is a little out of the way for the Jacobs Beach set, with the conviction that fresh air in the mountains is sure death and the only way a man can really live and breathe and stay healthy is along Jacob's Beach, just off Broadway, where the fumes of roaring cabs are at their thickest.

* * *

But, while they deem it off the beaten path and hardly worth a second glance because there are no skyscrapers around, Greenwood Lake has been visited by the mob from time to time and the boys agree, too, that it is a nice place to train a fighter—if all that silence of the big outdoors doesn't drive him nuts or the fresh air prove fatal.

Louis likes it up there at any rate and so do his handlers and it must be all right. He's still champion.

* * *

All pugilistic training camps are much alike and yet different, and they react accordingly on fighters. One who likes to be near activity and people and close to Broadway would go wild at Greenwood, in the dead of winter, but the quietness of the place and its seeming isolation, appeals to Louis and he goes back there time after time to condition for all his eastern bouts.

The Baers, Max and Buddy, generally like it better down in Jersey, and Buddy is getting in shape this time at Lakewood, not so far from the airport where the Graf Zeppelin disaster occurred a few years ago. These fight camps are spotted all over the surrounding landscape in these parts, and will supply whatever a guy thinks he must demand in training. They even got a daily audience for Lou Nova and his dynamic nonsense down in Jersey.

The natives, some of whom were used to prize-fighters and their antics but definitely not acquainted with Nova's peculiar quirks, stood in awe of him down in Jersey, at Pompton Lakes, but decided finally that you never can tell about these prize-fighters and just shook their heads in wonderment and let it go at that, pending outcome of his engagement with Louis.

Tony Galento had a favorite pool room in which he liked to train until boxing commissions chased him out into the open, but they never could chase him far enough to prevent his returning to his own joint for a snort whenever he felt the occasion demanded it.

* * *

The Galento camps were a little on the rowdy side; Nova's strange and unreal with his didoes; the Baers' camp good humored and businesslike, while old J. Dark Destroyer's is just a quiet place in which to get into shape—the idea behind a camp in the first place.

FIRST PLACE FRIENDLY HOUSE TEAMS MATCHED

In the Friendly House Senior White cage league, Rex Billiards will battle it out with Daly's cafe tonight at 6:45 for first place in the settlement gymnasium.

Other games will match Sferro's lunch against Isaly dairy at 7:30 p. m. and the Boston grocery vs. Hunt's News at 8:30 p. m.

Riddle Runs Cage Quintet

Cincinnati Pitcher Says Job Easier Than Hurling.

COLUMBUS, Ga.—(AP)—The coach's bench of a semi-pro basketball team car, get mighty hot, but Elmer Riddle, the Cincinnati Reds' pitcher-of-the-year, thinks it's still a snap compared to major league hurling.

Riddle, a red-hot basketball enthusiast and still quite some shakes as a player, is trying his hand at managing and coaching a Columbus bottling company team. So far the boys have played .500 ball—quite a way behind Riddle's individual performance in the pitcher's box last summer when he won 19 and lost four—but Riddle thinks they'll pick up.

* * *

"Coaching basketball is a snap compared to pitching in the big leagues," he says. "My boys are veterans and know the fine points of the game. My main worry is substitutions at the strategic time. In baseball you have to figure out the weakness of each batter. In basketball you usually can stop a team by bottling up one or two players."

* * *

Riddle has been associated with the team four years, and played as a forward for three seasons. Last year, fearing injury to an arm which probably is worth $250,000, he quit active participation, but he couldn't stay away from the hardwood. This season he's on the bench, as the one-man board of strategy.

4 Pros Start Tennis Tour

Budge, Perry, Riggs and Kovacs Open In Garden.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Four strictly professional tennis players and an amateur promoter will set out tonight to prospect for gold in them thar tennis hills.

There is every indication that the four players—Don Budge, Fred Perry, Bobby Riggs and Frank Kovacs—will make out all right. Alexis Thompson, wealthy young New York sportsman, has promised them $100,000 for the tour.

* * *

Thompson may come out with a profit, too. He has arranged a schedule on which it seems that it will be hard to lose much.

* * *

The tour probably is the nearest thing to the desired open championship that yet has been devised. Riggs and Kovacs were ranked 1—2 in amateur tennis for 1941 and Budge and Perry are the top pros.

* * *

For tonight's opener at Madison Square Garden Budge will oppose Kovacs, the "magnificent screwball" whose antics on and off the courts have provided excellent publicity material for the tour. Riggs and Perry clash in the second singles match and the newcomers play the veterans in doubles.

NO ANSWER RECEIVED

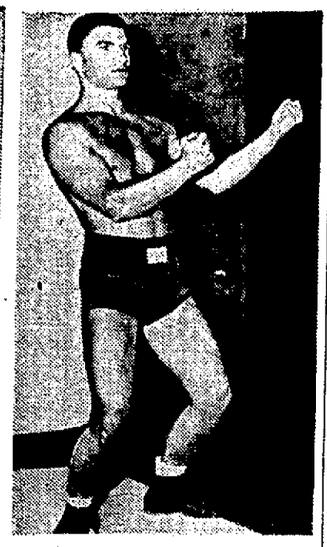
RENO, Nev.—(U.P.)—Charles B. Schuchardt, line coach at University of Nevada, said today that he had applied for the position of head football coach at Miami University, Oxford, O., but had received no answer. He formerly coached at Ohio Northern and Heidelberg colleges.

Sport Had Its Goofy Moments During Year

Brooklyn lost world series game after final out when Mickey Owen let a wide pitch get past him.

Syracuse offered "Y" formation, which found football center facing his backfield on offense.

Mercedes Marlowe said her women's tennis meet entry was rejected because she wore red shorts.



Boxer Lou Nova illustrates position for delivering "cosmic punch," his mystery blow.

Pirate Pilot Frank Frisch opened umbrella at dugout, protesting against baseball game being continued in rain. He drew a fine!

Hilarious Dodger fan invaded field, wanted a turn at bat during late-season Brooklyn ball game.

Boxing had a double knockout: In a bout at Kansas City, welterweights Al Dorlac and Pat Kissinger bumped heads and fell. Referee Harry Corbett ruled each lost by a knockout.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Say, what season is this, anyway? . . . We've become toughed to football running up to New Year's Day and basketball reaching a mid-season peak for the holidays, but now we find tennis crowding in while the ski meisters are complaining about the lack of snow . . . Folks hereabouts have been uncertain about the drawing power of Bobby Riggs and Frank Kovacs, who make their pro tennis debut at the Garden tonight, but the way Alexis Thompson has worked things out the tour may make money. Lex bought up more than $8,000 worth of seats for tonight's show, including all the $7.70 ducats, to sell to his friends.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Gene Korzelius, Buffalo Evening News: "Pittsburgh Field club has an escalator taking the players from the 17th green to the 18th tee. More than one club should provide such a lift from the 19th hole to the locker room.

POSTMAN'S PARAGRAPH

G. H. Miller of Salina, Kans., wants to know what does a ball player have to do to be the most valuable in the American league besides being the first player since Rogers Hornsby to bat over .400, take most of the other important batting marks and break up the all-star game. He asks the same question in connection with the most outstanding athlete of 1941 . . . Seems the second question should answer the first . . . The guys who compared Candidates DiMaggio and Williams in person picked Joe on the basis of those things that don't show in the figures . . . Don't forget that Joe's batting streak was the spark that set off the Yanks' world championship conflagration.

SERVICE DEPT.

Gary Body, who coaches the Norfolk naval training baseball club, is worried about where he'll find competition after the big league and big minor clubs finish spring training. He expects to have a team equal to the best in any AA league—and no wonder, since he's counting on Bob Feller to head his pitching staff . . . Report says Al (Bummy) Davis, the former welterweight title contender, has been transferred to the Philippines.

CLEANING THE CUFF

Moffat Storer, Duke's fastest back, may miss the Rose Bowl game because of a torn knee cartilage . . . Del Baker, Detroit Tigers' manager, has joined a home defense unit in San Antonio, Tex., where he spends the winter.

A CATCH-ALL

A deer trap on Drummond Island, Mich., last fall did a thorough job Besides catching deer, it trapped one dog, one cat, one snowshoe hare and one curious hunter who wondered if it would work. When friends got him out he reported that it did.

A KEHN SPORTSMAN

Chet Kehn, the rookie pitcher coming up to the Dodgers next spring, has taken up golf and bowling for exercise since he was forbidden to play winter baseball in California . . . In three years he has brought his golf score down to 72 and in two seasons he has hoisted his best bowling score to 193.

Big Ten Bucketball Clubs Set to Defend Reputation

By GRAHAM HOVEY

CHICAGO—(INS)—Judging by records of the preliminary season now waning, the section of the mid-west covered by the Big Ten conference appeared likely today to make a powerful bid for retention of its unofficial designation as the nation's college basketball capital.

Three conference teams, including Wisconsin's national champion Badgers, remain undefeated. Four other Big Ten members have lost only once. Outside the circuit, Chicago's two Catholic entries, Loyola and De Paul, have impressive records of six victories in seven games against all types of opposition.

Thus, nine teams today were heading toward their final 1941 games with good records, established as capable of upholding mid-western prestige in international basketball warfare.

Wisconsin no longer has Gene Englund, but Badger followers are about convinced that Veteran Johnny Kotz will do almost as well in the scoring column as the team starts off in defense of its Big Ten and N.C.A.A. crowns. To date the Badgers have won four straight games, stretching a winning streak, started last season, to 19.

Other unbeaten teams in the western conference are Minnesota and Northwestern. Paced by the Veteran Don Carlson and Sophomore Tony Jaros, the Gophers have whipped James Millikan, South Dakota, North Dakota State and Creighton, all by comfortable margins.

Northwestern has played only three games, defeating Western Michigan, Butler and Pitt, but the Wildcats have shown enough to warrant observers to select them for a first-division berth in the conference race. Otto Graham, the football sensation, has been even more spectacular in basketball, scoring 51 points in three games.

* * *

Right behind the unbeaten conference teams come Purdue, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio State, all beaten only once. The Great Lakes naval training station team, studded with former college and professional stars, whipped both Indiana and Purdue, while another fast-stepping service team representing Rantoul Field, Ill., accounted for the Illinois setback.

* * *

Ohio State started impressively by defeating Great Lakes, 38 to 32, but slumped badly in its last game, losing to Creighton, 60 to 34. In their second game, the Buckeyes edged out Kentucky in a 43 to 41 thriller. Dick Fisher, the football halfback, has been the chief Buckeye scoring threat.

* * *

Sophomores Ken Menke and Andy Phillip have been major factors in Illinois' victories over Marquette, Butler, Detroit and Notre Dame, while Capt. Andy Zimmer has been the sparkplug of the Indiana team which has won from Wabash, Nebraska and U. C. L. A. Veteran Forrest Sprowl had led Purdue to wins over Wabash, U. C. L. A. and De Paul.

That loss to Purdue is the only one to date for the demons of De Paul, who will meet the ranking teams from coast to coast this season.

Duke Favored Over Oregon

Rose Bowl Teams Both Rosily Confident of Win.

DURHAM, N. C.—(AP)—A rosy confidence prevailed at the two Rose Bowl football camps today as Duke and Oregon State players tucked away their Christmas presents and resumed drills for the transplanted classics to be played here before 55,000 fans on New Year day.

Although twice beaten Oregon State is on the short end of a 2-to-1 odds in Durham, both Coach Lon Stiner and Captain Martin Chaves refuse to accept the underdog role.

* * *

"I don't know anything about Duke's team, but I do know something about my boys," said Stiner. "Nobody managed to score more than two touchdowns against us in 1941 and we don't intend to start the new year on the wrong foot."

Chaves was even more outspoken.

"We feel," he said, "that a lot of people around here are going to be mighty surprised. Ever since we hit North Carolina last Wednesday, people have been telling us about how tough Duke is supposed to be.

* * *

"Allright—so they talk. But what are we supposed to be? Pushovers? Duke has a fine team. So have we. We figure Duke is going to play eleven men at a time—not supermen. We'll have eleven guys in there too."

GRAND JURORS TO BE CALLED EARLY IN 1942

Lutz Says Jurors Will Convene To Investigate 17 Cases Beginning Jan. 6.

The Richland county grand jury will be called into session Jan. 6 to hear 17 cases, Prosecutor Harold Lutz said today.

Among the charges the jurors will consider will be one accusing Warren Canter of interfering with a picket line at the Mansfield Shale Products company plant on the Olivesburg road during a labor dispute there several weeks ago. The charge was filed by a labor organizer and the case was appealed to common pleas court from a justice of peace court, Lutz said.

The jury will hear a charge of assault with intent to rape which was filed against John McLaughlin, Mansfield. He is accused of striking a young woman in the head with a hammer and attempting to assault her while she was sleeping in an automobile at a home near the city.

Other defendants in cases to come before the jury include:

Fred Scott, assault on a female child; Cisco Howard, Ray Poling, Walter Nixon, Melvin Brown, and Samuel Rose, operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent; George Williams and Clarence Gosser, breaking and entering; Salvatore Anastasi, embezzlement; John Shoffstall, Jacob Hriesik, Fred Simmons, Monroe Lacy and William Kuntz, non-support; Charles Brown, abandonment.

Besides the 17 cases to be submitted to the jury for open indictments, the prosecutor said there probably will be "five or six" secret cases, most of them involving non-support charges against men who have not been apprehended.

CHILDREN ARE LODGE GUESTS

The youngsters were transported from the home and back again in a school bus furnished by E. J. Houston, member of the Elks' committee for this affair. Marion D. Ward, jr., and Carol Herrick, other members of the committee assisted Houston in acting as hosts for the party.

After the party the children were given gifts of money by the lodge which has followed the custom of entertaining the young people at the home for the past 10 years

LAUNCH PLANS TO HELP SAVE WOODLOTS HERE

Farmers To Get Instructions on How To Save Timber, Conserve Land.

A long-range program to help save Richland county's woodlands, conserve the soil, and make it easier for farmers to market their lumber has been launched jointly by the Soil Conservation service and the county extension department.

Instead of haphazard methods of cutting their trees and marketing lumber for anything they can get for it, farmers will be told how they can save their woods and croplands and at the same time cut and sell their lumber to meet market demands, and for better prices, County Agent George B. Ganyard said.

"We don't expect to get results right away, but within four or five years the program should produce benefits," the county agent asserted.

Twenty county farm leaders, Farm Security clients, and farmers participating in the government soil conservation projects were in Portage and Geauga counties Monday to study their forestry improvement programs.

The Richland countians were interested in the northeast Ohio counties' "planned woodlots," but what interested them most was a "lumber harvester" they saw in operation. The "harvester" is a portable sawmill that can be set up and placed in operation in an hour. It moves from farm to farm, sawing lumber to specifications.

Richland county has 37 sawmills, Ganyard said, but most of them operate with logs cut by "scalping methods." That is, a woodlot owner or a dealer in lumber moves into a woodlot and takes all the good lumber in the lot.

Farmers are learning that a good woodlot, well cared for, can be of greater value to a farm than a pasture or a similar area in cropland, Ganyard said.

The woodlot not only saves the soil from erosion but it may protect farm buildings from wind and prove a good source of income for the farm owner, the county agent pointed out.

Farmers will hear of the forestry program through their farm organizations, community institutes, and in bulletins distributed by the county agent.

LOST IN RAID

LONDON—(U.P.)—Sir Walter Raleigh's pipe has been lost in an air-raid on London.

It was the most famous pipe in history and was owned by Alfred Dunhill's pipe firm in the West End of London. The shop was bombed in a recent raid. Despite days of searching through raid salvage, no trace can be found of Sir Walter's pipe.

Other famous pipes, including an old clay used by Sir Henry Irving, have also been lost.

BOARDROOMS DESERTED BY STOCK BUYERS

Sales Slow as Traders Keep on Celebrating Holiday; Issues Unchanged.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market found nothing particularly disturbing or stimulating in the war news today and leading issues shifted over a narrowly uneven route.

Dealings were relatively slow at the opening and, near the second hour, minor fractional price variations were the rule. Numerous issues were unchanged.

Many customers apparently decided to stretch their Christmas holiday through the week and the result was that most boardrooms were pretty well deserted.

Market optimists derived satisfaction from the Dun & Bradstreet survey which disclosed Christmas spending picked up sharply in the forepart of this week and, for the country as a whole, topped the comparable period a year ago by 16 to 25 per cent.

Studied were the figures of the American Iron & Steel institute which indicated that, due mainly to the captive mine strike, November production of finished steel dropped 562,184 tons from the October aggregate to 4,908,646 tons. Eleven months' output, though, was said to have established a record.

Australians Are Disgusted By Love Scenes, Walk Out of Show.

(By United Press)

DARWIN, Australia — Twenty Arnhem natives walked 400 miles to see their first moving picture at Darwin, but they became so disgusted at the love scenes that they left the show before it was finished.

Darwin police said none of the natives wanted to see another movie. They didn't like the kissing.

News of the white man's new flickers was brought to the tribe by a young man named Jacala.

Jacala had served a sentence in a Darwin jail for the fatal spearing of a tribal chief. He could see the movie's neon signs from his cell. He wanted to see why so many persons went into the theater. He planned to go to a movie when he was released, but police hurried him out of town.

But Jacala returned to his tribe and told them of the white man's new entertainment. He persuaded the tribe to go to Darwin to see for themselves. It took the tribe 40 days to make the journey.

Other movie-going natives forgot to warn them of the kissing scenes, which are obliterated by native movie fans, who flash electric torches when the kissing and hugging starts.

Disgusted with the love scenes, the tribe marched out of the theater and headed for home. The wet season caught the natives after they had gone 100 miles. Floods inundated the plain they were traversing and they took refuge in the trees. Finally, they decided to go back to Darwin where police put them on a boat which took them home by sea.

Buys Bonds With 'Life Savings'

Three-year-old Terry Gabor proudly displays the $200 in defense savings bonds in which he's invested his "life savings." Part of the money was made up of gifts from friends and relatives which his parents had placed in a savings account for him, and the rest was insurance money left after payment of medical and hospital bills when he was run over by a truck a year ago. Terry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Gabor, 666 Gilbert avenue, now reports he has given his money to "help Uncle Sam fight the Japs."

RECEIPTS DOWN

But Sales Tax Drop Believed Due To Reduced Car Sales.

Sales tax collections in Richland county nosedived during the second week of December, usually one of the best holiday shopping periods, the state treasurer's report showed today.

Receipts in the county for the week amounted to $15,973, a drop of $1,980 from the corresponding week last December.

The decline was attributed more to a slump in automobile sales than a falling off in holiday trade. Mansfield stores reported buying ahead of last year in most lines.

The county's sales tax receipts to mid-December amounted to $686,045 which was $115,820 better than last year.

In the state, receipts totaled $60,628,565 to the middle of December, an increase of $11,000,000 over the corresponding period in 1940.

RAIL REMOVAL CONTRACT UP

Council To Consider Company Offer at Final Session of the Year.

City council, scheduled to hold its last 1941 meeting between Christmas and New Year day, will be asked to approve a contract for the removal of abandoned street car rails from city streets.

W. C. Statler, city engineer, said today that representatives of the Pollak Steel company, Cincinnati, had delivered contracts for the work yesterday and that except for a few technicalities the contract would be ready for approval this week.

Under terms of the contract, the Pollak company would get the rails in exchange for removing them and replacing the pavement. Old bricks removed from West Fourth street would be used for the repaving. The steel company would purchase the bricks at a rate of $10 per thousand or a cent for each brick.

Statler estimates that there are about 450 tons of steel included in the six miles of rails still left in city streets. Most of the rails are on Main street with other sections on Park avenue west and Bowman street. The city has been attempting to have the rails removed because of the traffic hazards they present.
